Saigon Claims Attack Cost Enemy Forces 105 Casualties

SAIGON, Aug. 30 (AP).-The of captured American-made 105-Saigon command claimed today that 105 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were killed in a battle in southwestern Pleiku Province in the Central Highlands, about 210 miles northeast of Saigon.

Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, chief spokesman for the command, said that Communist-led forces, moving under a 1,000-round heavy artillery barrage at dawn yesterday, assaulted a government infantry battalion of 400 troops, about three miles northeast of the Plei Me base camp.

The command said that the government battalion was supported by heavy artillery and air strikes and that the attack was Initial reports listed govern-

Park Warns Japan Over Murder Case

President Calls In Tokyo's Ambassador

By Don Oberdorfer TOKYO, Aug. 30 (WP).—Relations between Japan and South Korea took a turn for the worse today with an unusual personal warning by Korean President Chung Hee Park.

Summoning the Japanese ambassador to the presidential man-sion in Seoul, Mr. Park expressed dissatisfaction with Japan's investigation of the background of the assassination attempt on him in which his wife was killed on Aug. 15. He demanded that Tokyo control what he called "criminal groups" in Japan working for his overthrow.

After the meeting, Ambassador Torao Ushiroku told newsmen, "I regard this as the greatest sort of warning?

. It is very unusual for Mr. Park to initiate diplomatic business with ambassadors. In this case, he employed Foreign Minister Kim Dong Jo as interpreter for the 40-minute meeting.

The alleged assassin has been identified as Mun Se Kwang, a 22-year-old Korean living in Osaka, Japan. South Korean authorities have charged that Mr. Mun was acting on instructions from North Korean agents assoclated with a North Korean-oriented association of Korean residents of Japan.

So far, Japan has narrowly limited its investigation to violations of domestic laws such as the false Japanese passport and stolen Japanese police pistol al-legedly used by Mr. Mun.

Japanese police officials have said that residents of Japan will not be turned over to the South Korean government if extradition is formally demanded. Other officials have said there will be no interference with 'egal political activities of Korean Communist or nationalist groups here which oppose the Park government. In an appearance here today before the Foreign Correspondents Club, Japanese Foreign Minister Toshlo Kimura said South Korean reports on the assassination were "at substantial variance" from those of Japanese police. He said Japan will pursue the case "as far as Japanese domestic law per-

North Korea Chided Over

Luxury Saunas

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 30 (UPI).-Through its embessy here, North Korea has ordered five super-luxury saunas complete with stereos, carpets and padded furniture for $23,000. an official of the Tylos Sauma Co. said today.

Sven-Olof Jansson, manager of the firm, said: "It is upsetting to find out that the socalled Socialists use the people's money on things like this, especially after all their cheap propaganda on how great they are."

Mr. Jansson said that the North Koreans may cancel their July order because of his revelation today, "but I feel that it is more important to disclose the falseness and the propaganda lies that are spread by many Socialist countries." He added that the North Koreans could have gotten ordinary saunas with plain wooden walls for onefifth the $23,000 outlay.

'No Deal' Pledged In Abduction of Echeverria Kin

GUADALAJARA, Mexico, Aug. 30 (AP),...The government said yesterday that it will not negotiate with the kidnappers of the 83-year-old father-in-law of President Luis Echeverria because it "does not make deals with crim-

Officials would not comment on a report that the kidnappers had demanded $1.6 million and the release of "political prisoners" in exchange for Jose Zuño Hernandez.

The police and the army set up roadblocks at major junctions and on the highways leading out of Guadalajara after Zuño Her-naudez was seized Wednesday morning at one of the city's busiest intersections, a few blocks from the Jalisco state government hezdouarters.

A report said notes left in various parts of the city iden-tified the kidnappers as members of the People's Armed Revolutionary Front, which kidnapped U.S. Consul-General Terrance Leonhardy last year. The state government denied the report but it was recalled that officials had issued a false denial of a similar report when Mr. Leonhardy was abducted.

There was no comment by Mr. Echeverria.

Soyuz Night Landing Called Part of Plan, Not Emergency

MOSCOW, Aug. 30 (AP) .- The head of Soviet cosmonaut training indicated today that the precedent-breaking night landing of Soyuz-15 was part of its regular flight plan and not an abrupt end to a shot that failed in its primary mission, as some Western space experts believe.

"There is no doubt that it is more convenient to land in the daytime." Mai. Gen. Vladimir Shatalov was quoted as saying in the Communist party paper Pravda. "But flights are becoming more regular. This is our work and we must do it in any conditions, including the landing...

"Besides that, by tying the landing to a definite time of the day, we set in advance rigid conditions for the starting crew. The task was to prove that it is possible to work at night as efficiently as in day. I think the crew of the Sovuz spaceship has proved

Routine Landing

The major Soviet newspapers outlined in great detail the return of the Soyuz-15, stressing that it was a normal, routine landing although under rain conditions. They reported that the crew was well and intended to return to

But there was no mention of any attempt to link up with the orbiting Salyut-3 space station, considered by some experts to be the main reason for the flight and there were none of the usual references to a "successful flight." Western specialists expressed the belief that the Soyuz ship may have been damaged durin attempts to dock with the Salyut, forcing the cosmonauts, Lt. Col. Gennady Sarafanov and Col. Lev Demin to return to earth Wednesday night after only about 50

The Soviet press did not report on the results of the flight. It said only that the two cosmonauts were preparing for meetings at Star City, the Soviet space comOn the night landing, the Soviet labor newspaper, Trud,

"If a roaceship makes landings only during the day, then this fact will lead to severe limitations on the schedule of space flights." Previously, Trud said that the length and programs of space flights had to be adjusted to make sure the capsules landed on the plains of the Kazakhstan Steppe during the day. "With the increasing number of space flights, such limitations are becoming a serious brake to their development." Trud said.

It noted that Soyuz-10 landed at dawn, "between day and night," and said that the crew of Soyuz-14, the last previous space shot, tested orientation of the space ship for return at night.

"This is a continuation of those experiments," Trud said.

Enlistment Lags For U.S. Navy

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30 (AP). -The Navy failed to meet its recruiting objective last month for the first time since January, the Pentagon has reported.

A spokesman suggested that this was because the Navy is choosy about the men it accepts as volunteers. "The Navy continues to emphasize high-quality standards," he said. "There is no intention to compromise these high standards in order to meet numerical goals."

The Navy fell 14 per cent below its objective, recruiting 11,260 men and women last month. The Army also slipped, but only by 4 per cent. It signed up 20,090 volunteers. The Air Force hit 101 per cent of its goal with 7.480 recruits. The Marine Corps made its quota with 6,250.

The interest that was sparked was almost more than had been bargained for by the exhibition sponsors, a 200-member association of Geneva residents that would like to provide the city The Vigilantes, a local rightwing political party, made an issue of the exhibition in the municipal council denouncing the city's officials for having permitted the "public display of Living up to its billing, the Big Art Show is grand in size. But it is narrow in scope and innovation, chancing not even the most conservative deviation from traditional forms and materials. Yet despite the size of the exhibit and its ultimate goal-sales the quality, quantity ratio is surprisingly high.

Although artists represented come from anywhere between Yugoslavia and the United States, this is primarily a national exhibition and a reflection of the current trends in modern German art. On display are works from three organizations: the New Group, young, lesser-known artists; the New Munich Artists Union, older, more established painters and sculptors, and the Secession, a melange of the first

Sags and Wrinkles

In the mirror of contemporary art, both the Secession and New Munich Artists' Union show their sags and wrinkles, while the New Group emerges fresh-faced and vigorous. But even their image is amazingly prim and inhibited for a group most of whose mem-bers are under 35. This impression may result from the group's decision to submit only drawings

Historically, the drawing has been merely a blueprint for larger works, only recently coming into its own as an art form. As perhaps the least exuberant and most cerebral form, drawing can expose an artist's creative process, bringing the viewer into the nucleus of the work and requiring an intellectual effort as well as a sensory response. Its transparency demands perfection of line and detail that paintings can slop over. Draftsmanship being a very lurge cornerstone in German training, this exhibit dazzles in its technical excellence.

The subject matter, on the other hand, is what one has come violence, sex-and-violence. luke-

MUNICH (IHT).—As Europe's warm political protest, and hohum social message. Preoccupation with death is seen in many forms, with skeletons, diseaseridden corpses and grotesque cripples littering the museum walls. In the New Groven the New Group section, a compartmentalized scene of dismembered bodies by Roland Dörfler is entitled, simply, "Land-scape." Heinz Knoke's "Speaker" represents the universal dictator, a hollow-cheeked, cadaver-like head resembling Hitler, barking commands to the world, the can-cer of corruption having eaten away part of his face.

Silent Scream

A silent scream of anguish shatters the museum hush, Hel-mut Lander's "Sinai 1." Next to this powerful drawing, Heinz-Otto Laug's halcyon "Seashells," one of the few still lifes. The intricacy in G. A. Breitling's "Roman Afternoon" proves that precision can convey sensuality, but at the expense of the abandon and expansiveness that painting permits. At best, an interaction of line and space excites the imagination on seeing Mac Zimmermann's "August 1973 Formentera," a vacant landscape strewn with shells and bones, two lovers holding hands amid the wreckage,

The Secession group's entries also include paintings and sculptures among the drawings. Of these, Klaus Böttger's "Head in the Circle," a blood-splattered nude female torso viewed through the cross-hatching of a rifle sight the cross-natching of a rife signt, has a macabre, erotic fascination. One of the more impressive graphics, Karl Plattner's lithograph, "In a Rocking Chair," conveys both the liberty and impressive graphics. pending death of very old age. The spirit of the Secession group is summed up in Reiner Zimnik's melancholy "Bride of the Security Forces," she being slightly overweight, aging, myopic and tightly

Third Section

The third section raises the most expectations, for it numbers among its members many famous names and established reputations. Kokoschka, himself a member of the New Munich Artists' Union, is shamelessly imitated in a charcoal portrait, "OK II," drawn in the artist's style by Boidl Wagenstetter. ART MARKET: Some Questions as the Season Begins

By Souren Melikian

TONDON, Aug. 30 (IHT).-As Sotheby's first sale of the season approaches Wednesday, ort market professionals wonder whether "they" will still be in the market.

"They," are the Near Eastern and Middle Eastern dealers-or the Western agents acting as buyers on their behalf-who have helped sales of late 19th-century or early 20th-century bronzes and furniture through June and July. At the end of July, "they" came out in the open and for the first time some Middle Eastern names just pseudonyms—were heard in Sotheby's Belgravia's rooms and went down in print on the price lists issued by the auctioneers after the sale.

The results must have been startling to the outsider, for example: Two lots were very similar. Both were pairs of gilt bronze candelabra supported by nude, chubby, puffy-faced boys.

The major difference was that one lot stood on white marble bases while those of the other were pure bronze. Other things being equal, the difference was to the advantage of pure bronze.

In aesthetic terms the two pairs, both French and both of the sixties or seventles of the 19th century, shared the same cheap quality of the ornament, the same excess of gaudy gold that in the Napoleon III court was the peak of 18th-century chic. Yet the difference in price was extraordinary. The pure bronze fetched 58 and Ali M. Abdoh promptly bid up to £170 for the other. This is not an isolated case, and a great many could no doubt be quoted if most buys from Eastern sources were not made by

That may well be why the market for mid- to late 19thcentury furniture and objets d'art of academic taste, whether neo-18th century or just in the gaudy style of its own period, has been characterized by chaotic spasms

One example out of a hundred: On July 24, a rolltop desk, or so Sotheby's called it perhaps to give it glamour, a "kingwood parquetry and marquetry bureau cylindre," 114 centimeters wide, was knocked down at £4.000 to a London dealer, C.E. Alexander, Sotheby's had put it down as French C. 1900—as indeed it was: a hideous copy of the Louis XVIstyle bureau which the Faubourg St. Antoine in Paris turned out by the thousands. An almost identical bureau had sold on Anril 17-also to C. E. Alexander-for £2,000. This is not to be understood as a 100 per cent rise on trash furniture because other cases do not bear this out, But it does illustrate the jigsaw movement of prices. For while there is a vast Western clientele for these objects too it is prepared to pay one third of or half the price. Moreover that clientele is feeling somewhat morose.

Direct Siberia-America Link Found

STORRS, Conn., Aug. 30 (AP).— A team of Soviet and American archaeologists said last week that their discovery of 9,000-year-old artifacts on an Aleutian island is the "first direct imk" between human life in North America and Siberia,

The archaeologists said that several kinds of tool blades unearthed on Anangula Island this summer matched other blades previously discovered in Siberia.

"This is the first direct link pe've had that the Aleuts came n the United States via the Bering land bridge that connectd Siberia and Alaska about 9,000 ears ago," William Laughlin told a news conference at the University of Connecticut. A. P. Okladnikov, head of the five-member Soviet team, said Soviet archaeologists have found similar tools in the Gobi Desert in Central Asia. "With this recent expedition, we have now found all three links: the skeleton of the Aleuts who killed the whale, what he killed it with and the bones of the whale," said Mr. Laughlin, head of the eight-member U.S.

Although the current project began five years ago, this was the first summer that scientists from the two countries worked together under the joint sponsorship of the Soviet Academy of Sciences and the U.S. National Academy of Sciences. The two-month expedition was funded with a $60,000 grant from the University of Connecticut, the U.S. National Science Formdation and the New York-based Wenner-Gren Poundation for Anthropological Research. "We know where the first Americans came from but we want to know what they did when they arrived here," said Mr. Mr. Laughlin said that the artifacts were found on two sites on the tip of the Anangula, located in the middle of the Aleutian sland chain that extends more than 1,250 miles southwest from the tip of the Alaskan peninsula. The artifacts, found at sites shout one-half mile apart, were buried under an estimated 5 feet noted that one location was about 50 feet above sea level and the other was about 150 feet above. An Algut specialist since 1936, Mr. Laughlin said that the sites show that a village of about 100 persons at the lower elevation moved to the higher site between 5000 and 7000 BC because of glacial melting.

The Near Eastern intrusion into the field was accompanied by a series of paradoxes. One was that dealers, or at least most dealers who sell 19th-century furniture, bronzes, etc., do not derive immense profit from it. Near Easterners have a preference for auctions where they have the easy feeling that the laws of supply and demand shelter them from the dangers of overpaying. They are still new at the game, and they usually do not fully measure the effect of artificial excitement that may take hold of two dealers, each with a given client in view. By far the greatest paradox is that gradually the rubbish has come to be more

Period 18th-century furniture, when not of museum caliber—and there is precious little of that left on the market—is sinking steadily. The £4,000 paid for the bureau à cylindre bought by Mr. Alexander is 30 per cent more than the price the same bureau of the 18th-century period is likely to fetch at auction at the Hotel Drouot in Paris. But very few people in Europe now want this bureau and the new buvers from the East will not even look at it: the patinated wood, the slightly shaky leg that it may have as a result of respectable age, won't do. It is not only a matter of condition but also of expensive than the real goods.

Ali M. Abdoh paid £1,350 for a porcelain-and-gilt bronze clock and matching pair of candelabra; that is at least twice the price of some excellent clocks of the Louis XVI period—supposedly the source of inspiration for Mr. Abdoh's buy-I saw at French auctions last season.

The intermittent inflationary intervention of the Near Eastern buyers has been worrying some of the more far-sighted professionals. For one thing, they fear it may not last very long. Newcomers are apt to be whimsical, and when commercially shrewd don't get fooled very long. And the newcomers in the Near East as elsewhere are commercially shrewd. Another cause of worry

Eyes Opened to Gorky's Virtues

By John Walker

ONDON, Aug. 30 (IRT).-Maxim Gorky for too long has been underrated as a playwright, seen as someone standing in the shadow of Chekhov, as the author of one play, "The Lower Depths," and some other briefly sensational works that owed their success to the political situation in Russia in the early 1900s.

The Royal Shakespeare Company's recent devotion to his work has opened our eyes—or, at least, mine—to Gorky's many virtues, to his large and exuberant vision of life, his superabundant

"Summerfolk"—the RSC's third Gorky production—at the Aldwych, is both a remarkable play and a remarkable production. Gorky wrote the play in 1905 and it is only now receiving its British premiere. It is an explicitly political play, with Gorky undertaking some expert bourgeois-bashing. What is astonishing is that the politics are as relevant now as they were then, an impression aided by Jeremy Brooks and Kitty Hunter Blair's modern, idiomatic English trans-

The summerfolk of the play's title are the nouveau riche, children of working-class parents who have made money and are now spending it on renting villas for the summer where they sit and talk idle profundities. They regard themselves as the liberal intelligentsia. As Edward Braua points out in a program note, the play is almost a sequel to Chekhov's "Cherry Orchard": "It is as though Lopakhin has chopped down the cherry trees in Madame Rauevskaya's orchard and built dachas down by the river. Defense Allowed

Gorky condemns them for turning their backs on the class from which they came. Yet he does not deny his characters their humanity or individuality and allows them eloquent defense of their attitude. Susloy, an engineer, regards his early poverty as reason enough for now leading a luxurious life, dedicated to self-interest. Ryumin, in love with his neighbor's wife, theorizes that truth is ugly and that illusion and deliberate self-deception make existence more beautiful. He declares his love in the fond belief that it will be returned, is rejected and, trying to kill himself, manages to shoot himself in the shoulder while aiming unpleasant things only behind someone's back breaks down, and there is a series of fiery confrontations between the three dissidents and the others. The catalyst for this is the presence of a stranger, Shalimov, a writer much admired for his idealism who—shades of "Bingo"—turns out in person to be a corrupt and petty hack.

There are a complex of subplots, as each of the play's many characters seeks different sorts of fulfilment—Yulia. Suslov's wife. in an allair with a triend of the family; Bassov, a lawyer, in hearty games and heavy drinking; Kaleria, his sister, in vriting bad poetry. But the play concentrates on the dissatisfaction felt by Varvara, Bassov's wife, who still remembers the idealism of their student days and their dreams of what they would do with their lives, and by her confused young brother. Vlass, who gains the courage to express his conviction of the emptiness of their existence through his love of an older, wiser woman, Maria.

From the early scenes of languid gossip on green lawns to the final shouting climax, "Summerfolk" is exciting, gripping theater. It may not be great art, but it is a fine play, compassion-

> David Jones's production, with O'Brien and Tazeena Firth, is a brilliant achievement. The acting, too, is of high quality, with Ian Richardson's Shalimov, the smooth and empty author, outstanding. MUSIC IN ITALY

Concentrating on Busoni As First-Rate Composer

By William Weaver

EMPOLI, Italy, Aug. 30 (IFIT). Opus 52, played by Severino Gaz--Last night, the Accademia Chigiana of Siena moved its Settimana Senese Pestival a few miles north to offer a combined concert and opera program in the little Tuscan city of Empoli. This was the native town of the composer Ferruccio Busoni, who died almost 50 years ago, so last night's program was celebratory, part of a series of Busoni concerts Empoli will be giving over the next few months, Busoni celebrations will also bear more permanent fruit: The city is setting up a center of Busoni studies, and a complete edition of Busoni's writings-including many fugitive articles and essays never collected before-will be published before the end of the year by the Milanese firm of

Inaugural Concert

The first part of the inaugural concert consisted of two Busoni lieder, persuasively sung (in the original German) by the baritone Claudio Desderi, one of Italy's most gifted and versatile young singers. The songs were "Altoums Gebet" and "Mephistopheles Lied," of particular interest because they can be considered studies, preliminary sketches for two of Busoni's operas, respectively "Turandot" and "Doctor Faust."

Unfortunately, the concert was held in the open air, in the spacious but noisy Piazza Farinata Degli Uberti, so the listener had to strain his ears to catch and appreciate the music's subtleties. mento" for flute and orchestra, again, zelloni with his usual brio. The square's noises abeted somewhat for the second half of the evening, so it was easier to follow the staged performance of Busoni's one-act opera "Arlecchi-no," written in Switzerland during World War I and first presented in 1917. A witty, but per-vasively melancholy Commedia dell'Arte, the opera is notable for the refinement and variety of the orchestral writing.

Festival Orchestra

The Siena festival's orchestra did a creditable job, under the fluent direction of Piero Bellugi. Again Desderi, as Ser Matteo, sang well, and so did the rest of the cast in which we could almost include the prompter, whose insistent voice often created an unwanted pre-echo effect.

Lorenzo Ghiglia designed a tilting, Caligari-like set and appropriate, traditional costumes. Roberto Guicciardini's staging was deft and tactful

Yesterday afternoon, before the music, Italy's distinguished composer Luigi Dallapiccola gave a talk on Busoni in Empoli's Municipal Library. It was an instructive and pleasant hour, in which Dallapiccola discussed the multifaceted nature of Busoni's career, emphasizing the neglect that dogged his compositions for such a long time. Now that only a few disks and plano-rolls remain to document Busoni the virtuoso planist, we can more easily-and profitably-concentrate on Busoni the composer, beyond doubt an The same problem vitiat- artist of the first rank, as las ed enjoyment of the 'Diverti- night's concert proved once

Germany Sets Curb on Bank Money Deals

BERLIN, Aug. 30 (AP).—The Federal Supervisory Office in West Berlin announced today new restrictions aimed at curbing the margin of risk for German credit institutions dealing in foreign

A spokesman, in making the amouncement, said the action was taken in agreement with the German federal bank.

The announcement said that effective Oct. 1 overall open, or "risk," positions in foreign exchange may not exceed 30 per cent of a bank's own capital.

Further, risk positions in funds due within one month and within six months are limited to 40 per cent of capital

The Federation of West German Banks had wanted an overall 40 per cent curb, 50 per cent for one-month money and 30 per cent for half-year money. The announced result is a compromise.

The announcement said that foreign notes and coins are not included in the new regulations. A spokesman described the new restrictions as a precautionary

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

Iran Said to Eye Volkswagen

Shares of Volkswagenwerk rose to 90 marks in trading before the opening of the Frankfurt stock exchange today from 85 at the close yes-terday on a report that Iran wants to invest in the company. The stock closed at 89.10. The newspaper Handelsblatt said VW has been conducting serious negotiations with Iran for the past week over a possible production plant in Iran, which reportedly would provide most of the investment required for the project. "Rumors have it that the Shah is seeking in this connection the acquisition of a portion of the shares currently held by the German government," the report said. The government owns 20 per cent of the auto manufacturer. It has been known for some time that Williams. for some time that VW is considering a plant

U.S. Firms to Cut Car Production

U.S. auto makers are scheduling 6.5 per cent fewer new-car assemblies next month than in a strike-hampered September 1973, largely reflecting cautious planning by General Motors Corp. GM has apparently decided against trying to make up much of the production it has lost to strikes in the past two months and instead has targeted relatively conservative output next month, sources say. The industry's planned output of about 674,000 cars will leave third-quarter production at about 1,670,000 cars, down over 12 per cent from a year before and some 9 per cent below the schedule sources said auto makers had targeted at the beginning of July. Most of the drop from year-before totals in both the quarter and September reflect GM's plan to build only 320,000 cars in September, down nearly 25 per cent from the 424,207 cars it built last Scotember.

Rothmans Expects Profit Decline

Rothmans International expects "a reduction in our profits during the current financial year," Sir Derek Pritchard, chairman, said in his annual statement. "Just how much our profits will be reduced will depend largely on our success or otherwise in obtaining the vitally necessary increases in our selling prices." Sir Derek said. The chairman said that because Rothmans' tobacco and cigarette activities are in various countries, the company has the advantages of a wider market and in the long term the company should be able to ride out adverse business conditions in individual areas. Rothmans has not yet reported earnings for the year ended June 30. In the nine months to March 31 the company's pretax profit was £27.2 million, up slightly from £26.5 million a year

Fed Figures Boost Wall St. Prices

A rally touched off by indications the Federal Reserve may relax its tight monetary policy carried prices sharply higher on the New York Stock Exchange

The Dow Jones industrial average soured 21.74 to 678.58. The advance in the blue chip indicator follows a prolonged market drop in which the index lost more than 140 points. The recovery is the first substantial gain since Aug. 7, when the Dow closed ahead 23.78.

Turnover totaled 16.23 million shares, against 13.69 million yesterday.

Investors took heart from Federal Reserve figures indicating growth of the nation's money supply had dropped sharply since the first half of the year. In-siders said the leveling off would allow the Fed to relax its credit hold and relieve upward pressure on interest rates.

Treasury bill rates fell again from record levels earlier in the week, reflecting the belief the Fed's slight shift in policy would result in a smooth decline in interest rates.

Adding to the surge of optimism on Wall Street, First National City Bank and First Na-tional Bank of Chicago announced they would hold their prime rate for top business borrowers at 12 per cent, although guide-lines call for a move above the current record level. Kaufman & Broad was one of the most active issues on the NYSE, slipping 1/4 to 3 1/8. A block of 120,900 shares of the issue traded at 2 7/8. The company, the nation's largest home builder, said it expected to report a $19.9-million net loss for the

On the over-the-counter mar-ket, the industrial average on the NASDAQ index rose by 120.

In Treasury bills, the three-month bill ended the week an almost unheard-of 100 basis points in yield down from Monday's auction level, the six-month bill shed about 55 points and the 10-month bill, despite its apparent unattractiveness, dropped by about 40

Since midyear, such loans have mushroomed more than $1.36 billion—more than double the $578-million increase in the similar period last year. Of the increase in business loans since midyear, about $400 million was borrowed by gas and electric utilities and almost that much by oil refining companies. Analysts suggested that about two-thirds of the unexpected in-

The Kalb brothers deal briefly with Kissinger's childhood, with his career at Harvard and with his role as a policy adviser before 1969, but their study really begins with the hiring of Kissinger by Nixon and covers Kissinger's (Yesterday's readings; U.S., Canada diplomacy up to this spring. Consequently, the Kalbs' biography of Kissinger becomes an account the Nixon-Kissinger foreign

This does not mean that they turn away from the secretary of state's personality. They are obviously awed by him, by his unexpected skill at mastering, or at ast neutralizing, a huge bureaucracy, at surviving the suspiciousness of his colleagues in the White House, at seducing such difficult or hostile forces as congressional committees or the media. They are impressed by his stamina, amused by his wit, delighted by his ability to make fun of his own ego. But psychological probing is not their chief interest. The story they tell provides one with a multitude of clues for understanding the highly complex character of a man whose elusiveness is both a requirement of his own diplomacy and the result of a quite extraordinary blend of deep seriousness and detachment, lifelong preparation and daily improvisation, ambition and loneliness, arrogance and humility, abstract intelligence and intuitive finesse, toughness and extreme sensitivity. But when one is through with the book, the man remains elusive. The main effort of Marvin and Bernard Kalb bears on his actions, not his policy design. It is not an analytical or conceptual volume, and only in a short but excellent conclusion do they really sketch in what might be called the "Grand Design" of the secretary—that "stable structure of peace" that resembles him altogether, for it remains as hard to grasp as it is supposed to be both complex and steady. Nor do they pause to study his style and his methods. It is on the story—indeed, very often the inside story—of his moves that they focus.

In doing so, they come close to reproducing one of the key paradoxes of Kissinger's diplomacy. In his academic days, he had often criticized his predecessors in power for neglecting the long range and for coping with one crisis after the other. But his own policy has been far more successful in dealing with crises than in fulfilling a long-range vision, despite all the lofty words of his yearly "State of the World" memages and the speeches at the United Nations. His own crisisdiplomacy has been infinitely more imaginative, more varied, more subtle and more persistent than that of his predecessors, as the Kalbs show. But he too has been better at coping with the urgent than at dealing with what might, in the long run, turn out to be the most important. The Kalbs' book, like Kissinger's diplomacy, has a certain breathless neglect of economic relations, his frequent mismanagement of Western Europe and Japan, his indifference toward the developing world (until the oil crisis), his complacency about the Middle East powder keg (until it exploded last October), his policy toward Bangladesh, his support of the Greek and South Korean dictatorships, his persistent misbandling of Cambodia, his dis-dain for all forms of diplomacy other than bilateral, are barely covered here.

It also reflects their subject insolar as it concentrates far more on what ended up well (at least

So, what we find is a detailed and often picturesque coverage of the high points: Vietnam, the "breakthroughs" with China and the U.S.S.R., the crisis in the Middle East in the summer of 1970, the Yom Kippur war and its aftermath. The Kalhs provide the reader with a huge mass of data, rather than with evaluations (they are, at times, critical of Kissinger's acts, but they seem reluctant to stress their own assessments). They show Kissinger's skill in combining the use of force or the threat of force, and flexible diplomacy. Contrary to what he has sometimes let some of his liberal friends believe, he has never hesitated to recommend or to support the resort to violence when he thought it necessary, but it was on behalf of a specific diplomatic goal and with the intention of providing the opponent with a non-humiliating way out.

"Our primary source was Henry Kissinger," say the authors. This raises some questions: Is the story described here necessarily the last word? Other participants might have a different view.

One of the most interesting things about the volume is the light it throws on the Nixon-Kissinger relationship in the foreign policy process. The Kalbs argue that it was Nixon, not Kissinger, who, immediately after getting to the White House, push-ed for an opening to Red China. They point out that all the vital decisions on Vietnam were Nix-on's (including the decision not to rush an agreement before the November 1972 election, given the objections of Saigon). If, on Viet-nam, Kissinger often operated on a very short leash, this does not seem to have been the case in dealing with the U.S.S.R., about which the two men appear to be in full agreement,

The Kalbs, inevitably, end on a note of suspense. They realize that all of Kissinger's achievements are fragile or still reversible. They write that "nothing is more meaningful" to Kissinger "than the launching of SALT."
Published at a time when SALT negotiations are stalled, for reasons not entirely unconnected with the impact of Watergate abroad, this book, which tends at times to lose sight of the forest in its enthusiasm for describing the more spectacular trees, leave one with the hope that the authors will write a sequel. It should not only cover the rest of the story, but also look back again and attempt to put the whole remarkable story in perspective. It is too early for anyone to do so

East Germany Challenges the Prestige of U.S. Swimming

CONCORD, Calif., Aug. 30 (AP).—"We take this differently than the Americans," said Rudolf Schramme, coach of the East German swimming team "We are more realistic.

The Americans have been the best for years, and their men will rumain best. There will be many other times to prove things." Schramme's powerful squad faces the Unitr States here this weekend in the first dual meet between the world's top swim-with Fillel having won the first set but trailing 4-1 in the second, or for the East German team to end the U.S. reign of more than a decade over international swimming,

"The prestige of American swimming is at stake," says American men's coach Ron Balatorre, "The East Germans wouldn't be here if they didn't think they had a shot at us."

Not so, says German star Kornells Ender, who won four gold medals at the 1973 champion-

Competing here after dominat-ing last week's European championships in Vienna, the youthful East Germans are sticking to swimming. They originally were scheduled to take alghisecing trips and one cruise on San Francisco Bay, but canceled all social activities except for a shopping center visit and a dinner last night at San Francisco's Fisherman's Wharf.

Babashoff's mind is on her German rival. "I remember Belgrade and I'm thinking, There goes Kornelia, I've got to get her'," she said.

Ender said the East Germans didn't burst onto the international swimming scene overnight.

"We have been building for vears." she said after finishing the first half of her daily six to eight-mile workout. "We have a great national competition sys-

"I think the women train barder than we do," said Wolfrem Sperling, who swims the individual medley on the men's team. "They train together. They work themselves."

The American men are favorites to win their half of the meet, but triple world record-holder Tim Sham isn't taking anything for granted.

The only thing people will ask about is the combined score," said the lanky 16-year-old freestyler. "We have to get as far out ahead as possible, not just win it. We're not swimming for any world records, just to win."

Track Keeps Ban

S. Africa Loses, China ${\it Wins Recognition Battle}$

ROME, Aug. 30.—China yesterday made new gains in the world of sports while South Africa, once again, went nowhere.

The International Amateur Athletic Federation voted to lock out South Africa from track and field events for another two years, but formally approved China's participation in the upcoming Asian Games,

In Tehran, site of the Asian Olympics, International Swimfing Federation (FINA) president Harold Henning announced that China would be allowed to compete in the water events, thus reversing an earlier decision, China, which does not belong to the organization, earlier this month had asked for special per-mission to swim in the games. But it also requested that Taiwan be ousted from the pool FINA refused. China then submitted a new application which did not FINA yesterday accepted it.

In Rome, the IAAF congress became chaotic at one point as excited black African delegates stood and shouted at the end of the debate on South Africa.

One African after another went to the speaker's stand to reject the arguments of Hannes Botha, of South Africa, who claimed his country had made progress towards racial integration in sport since the LAAF first banned South Africa from international competition two years ago.

The chaos reached its high point when Britain's Lord Exeter, the IAAF president, invited Botha to return to the stand and answer the criticisms.

Africans stood, shouting that ich delegation was suppo: be limited to one speech

Exeter argued that Botha was not making a second speech, but merely answering questions. Finally, he took a vote on a show of hands, and the congress voted 144-138 not to permit Botha to speak again.

Exeter asked Boths to stand down, remarking, "I must say I think it is very unfair."

The congress then voted by secret ballot, 183-152, to continue a total ban on South Africa in international competition.

This was in defiance of the IAAF executive council which had proposed that South Africa still be banned from the Olympics, world championships and major regional games, but be per mitted to compete in head-on matches against other nations. Botha had told the congress that the All-South African cham-

NEWPORT, R.I., Aug. 30 (NYT). -While her sea-going cheering section shouted its approval, Intrepid beat Courageous yesterday for the third straight time in their battle for the role of America's Cup defender.

The victory, by a margin of 54 seconds in light to moderate air, moved the ?-year-old Intrepid a step closer to becoming the first three-time cup defender.
The selection committee of the New York Yacht Club, though, probably will have the trials continue a few more days, possibly even to next Tuesday's deadline. Five racing days renain, but the two 12-meter yachts probably wouldn't race today. The weather bureau warned of gale-force winds of 40 to 60 knots from a tropical storm offshore. The selection committee, headed by Henry Morgan, must decide by midnight next Tuesday which yacht it will send against Southern Cross of Australia in the best-of-seven cup defense starting Sept. 10. Each American boat has defeated the other four times in the final trials, which began Aug. 15.

come president. African delegates, supported by speakers from Eastern Europe, argued that integration in sport should begin at club level.
The approval of China's par-the council and be eligible to ticipation in the Asian Games track events, which open at Tehran next week, was only a formality and was passed unanimously.

The council had recommended a change in the rules to allow a nonaffiliated country, such as China, to compete against member countries with the council's permission. The change in rules was rushed through for the benefit of the Asian Games.

The congress was held as athletes gathered in Rome for the European track and field chompionships, which open at the Olympic Stadium Sunday,

Cards Gain On 1-Hitter By Curtis

Trail Pirates By Half a Game

SAN DIEGO, Aug. 30 (AP),-John Curtis pitched a one-hitter and Jim Dwyer and Mike Tyson hit ninth-inning run-scoring singles to give the St. Louis Cardinals a 3-1 victory over the San Diego Padres last night.

The victory, coupled with Pittsburgh's loss, moved the Cards to within a half game of the firstplace Pirates in the National League East.

Curtis had had a perfect game going for seven innings. But in the eighth, he walked leadoff man Dave Winfield, walked Derrel Thomas with one out and then gave up his only hit—a solid run-scoring single by Fred K-ndall past shortstop Tyson that tied the score, 1-1.
With two out in the ninth, Bake

McBride, Ken Reitz, Dwyer and Tyson hit successive singles to win the game.

Lou Brock of St. Louis stole two bases to raise his total to 93 and put him 21 games ahead of Maury Wills's 1962 pace when he swiped a record 104. It was the 20th time this season Brock has stolen two bases in a game and the 106th time in his career. He tried for a third steal in the eighth inning but was cosily thrown out. It was the 23d time he was cut down.

Gianis 3, Pirates 2

At San Francisco, Dave Kingman's third hit, a single with one out in the 11th inning, drove in Gary Matthews from second to give the Giants a 3-2 victory over Pittsburgh and snap the Pirates victory streak at six games. Kingman's 14th homer, a solo blast in the fourth, had given the Giants a 2-0 lead and San Francirco was within two outs of making it stand up when the Firates tied the score in the ninth on Willie Stargell's 21st homer. Dodgers 3, Cubs 1

At Los Angeles, Andy Messersmith and Mike Marshall combined on a three-hitter as the Dodgers collected their fifth straight victory, defeating the Chicago Cubs, 3-1. Los Angeles widened its lead in the National League West to 3 1/2 games over idle Cincinnati.

Messersmith, winning his 16th game against five losses, did not allow a hit for six innings but lost the no-hitter and the shutout when rookie Pete Lacock led off the seventh with his first career home run.

Braves 7. Expos 2

At Montreal, Mike Lum cracked a solo home run in the second inning and Ralph Garr belted a three-run shot in the third to lead Atlanta over the Expos. 7-2. Red Sox 3, White Sox 2

At Chicago Rick Burleson drove in two runs as Boston denied Wilburn Wood his 20th victory, benting the White Sox, Bill Lee, with help from Diego

Segui, raised his record to 15-11, while dropping Wood's to 19-16. Les had a shutout until the seventh, when the White Sox scored two unearned runs. Orioles 6, Rangers 3

At Arlington, Texas, Tommy Davis drove in three runs and scored another to help Baltimore break a four-game losing streak by beating the Rangers, 6-2.

have made a field day this summer as France marked the 30th anniversary of the Liberation.

Turning Tragedy Into Fashion in France

DARIS (IHT).—Usually, a 25th anniversary is more feted than I a 30th, but last weekend's celebrations of the 30th anniversary of the Liberation of Paris have been peculiarly intensive, ranging from fireworks and dancing in the streets, TV and radio debates, articles in scandal sheets, and a special two-page inquiry in Le Monde on some of the questions that have remained unanswered since August, 1944, when in Gen. de Ganile's understandably hyperbolic phrase, a wounded and martyrized Paris rose and freed herself.

One reason for the special interest and healthy inquiry this year is that during the 25th anniversary De Gaulle was still alive and was still imposing his unique view of the Liberation on the French. Also, a new generation has grown up in 30 years and is curious about its parents suffering and shame (Micheline Bood, who was 14 in 1940 and whose diary of the Occupation years, "Les Années Doubles," was published this spring, says most of her mail comes from young people.)

Another reason why the Liberation is so interesting these days is because the period it erupted from, the Occupation, is madly fashionable in France.

As in the United States, France is undergoing a wave of nostalgia. The phrase here is la mode rétro, and la mode rétro consists of an unappetizing mix of the last 40 years, with special emphasis on 1940-44. The Occupation and the "purifying" period, or L'Epuration, that followed it, the most tragic and troubling years of French history, have been reduced to mere fashion and have thus been removed from any moral

A Report

This results in a horror like a recent issue of Paris-Match which printed, as if it had a scoop, some newly uncovered photos of daily life in occupied Paris. La Mode Rétro Discovers Occupied Paris in Color" ran the headline, and the article started as follows:

"La Mode Rétro is here. Europe is delving into its past, the 1930s with the Gatsby style, cloche hats and lowered hemlines, the 1940s with the mode of yellow stars for Jews and gray-green tunics and cleated boots for men . . .*

No enterprising boutique has started selling yellow stars yet but there's no reason to think they won't. Already, hit songs from the Occupation have been reissued and German-born Karl Lagerfeld was hailed in a mode rétro section in Elle for relaunching those amusing 1940s style clothes. Whether rutabaga and ersatz coffee will start reappearing on menus seems unlikely. A line must be drawn somewhere, usually in France at the point where the stomach is concerned.

A 27-year-old writer, Patrick Modiano, described in one serious weekly as "the ancestor of la mode retro," has set his three successful novels in the Occupation and he is also the co-author of the script of Louis Malle's greatly successful film "Lacombe Lucien," which is set in the 1940s and which includes a bomber crew-type cast of stereotype collaborators: an ignorant peasant, a paunchy excycling champion, a decayed aristocrat. The 1940s settings are meticulously observed—"they're marvelously done," says a survivor of the time, "done as they only could be by someone who didn't know the period."

Suggestion

Malie's sleek film makes the curious suggestion that chance, not choice, decided whether one collaborated or resisted, and he has remarked in interviews that his intention was to avoid moral judgment, to suggest that "not all fascists are abnormal beasts, that things aren't always as black and white as that." The suggestion is that gray, being neutral, is somehow truer than black or white, that ambiguity is a virtue. An article in a Parls weekly, remarking how "easily" one can alip into the role of torturer or victim, drags in Hannah Arendt's celebrated phrase, "the banality of evil," in support, though in fact what such thinking shows is nothing more than the banality of

Aside from books by historians and memoirs, the work that ended the silence on the subject of the Occupation was of course "Le Chagrin et la Pitié," a film of unique rigor and humanity. There have been other works on the period before la mode rétro appeared, notably two best-selling books by children of collaborators: Pascal Jardin's sour and funny "La Guerre a Neuf Ans" and Marie Chaix's Somber "Les Lauriers du Lac de Constance.'

Marie Chaix has also written articles recently on la mode retro and the nausea it makes her feel. In a Nouvel Observateur article called "Fascism à la Mode," she speaks of the attempt to revive the blackened years of the Occupation and to whitewash them at the same time: "Those who are fascinated by Nazism and the Occupation have short memories." she writes. "If I returned to the 1940s in my book it wasn't from nostalgia but from a wish to wipe them from my mind.

"When I cry out to my father, whom I never approved of, Now you can rest quietly, it's because I thought that with him I had buried hate and shame, sorrow and pity. But my ghosts aren't dead, I see them on every street corner

At any rate nostalgies and ghosts of all persuasions have had a field day this summer. A few weeks before the men and women of the Resistance paid homage to comrades who fell to free France a two-paragraph French newspaper story noted that the Paris monument to Jewish martyrs had been profaned and signs had been painted on Jewish-owned shopfronts, "Jews to the ovens." Is this, too, la mode rétro?
